September Featured Artist Leslie Nauta

Reception on Saturday,
September 26th 1 pm – 4 pm

My paintings are executed in hues of brilliant colors to excite the viewer, whether it's a landscapes, animals, birds or even my recent experiment with abstracts, or whether they are done in acrylics, watercolor or pastels. Composition and color excite me most. I love to watch a painting slowly come to life, sometimes by a surprise accident! I paint with passion and feeling, watching a blank canvas slowly grow and come to life. I feel a sense of pride that I am creating something for posterity.

AFAF & Member News

Fall fundraiser planning. We are planning for our virtual fall fundraiser. If you want to be on the committee to help plan the fundraiser, please contact Cindy Trombino at loganglass.76@gmail.com. You do not have to be an exhibiting member to get involved.

Members that are donating work should also contact Cindy so we can plan. You can send in digital images of your work or contact her to have your work photographed. Artwork in the fundraiser will also be hung in the back gallery in October. Individuals will be able to bid online or bid in the gallery.

Donations

Thank you to an anonymous donor who donated their stimulus check to AFAF.

Also, thank you to Logan Ghormley's family who donated $550 from the sale of his glass at the August show seen below.

Join us in welcoming our new exhibiting member Lynette Anderson.

Short Creative Writings

"A Chat with Death"
by Ron Daiss

"Death, I will not come," I said, but added hastily, "not now, that is."

"Sir", spoke death, "there is seldom a great hurry, except sometimes on a battlefield, or some other sort of disaster, a plague perhaps."

"You see I need much more time to tie up my affairs."

"I can always wait because I always win. I'm the one who does win, you realize. And I know all the tricks, you surely are aware of this. The love of a man and a woman in marriage some consider divine, and that they shall cheat me with their fountain of youth, their child. But I'm dignified and patient and know the child, becoming an adult---and an old one---is constantly traveling towards my conclusive embrace."

"But my soul will survive you."

Death repressed his smile, perhaps because of this common remark and my pensive words, before he spoke.

"Know that I deal with the science of the corruption of the flesh. This and only this. You may entertain yourself with whatever mystery or mythology you choose. I'll arrive to make you invisible from whatever you are now."
